

Firm holds on to title

The Interchange Group at Lockington has successfully retained its Investors in People award.

The company, based at Lockington Hall, is an electronic-business specialist in customer relationship and service management.

It employs 95 people at Lockington and Newport Pagnell.

The group was originally recognised as an Investor in People at its first attempt 1998 and recently won the award for the second time.

Managing director Phillip Jones said: "We are delighted that the Investors in People team has recognised the ongoing commitment which we have to investing in our staff and helping them develop their careers."

Telegraph, Derby

22 July 2002

Still an Investor

LOCKINGTON firm Interchange has retained its Investors in People standard. The company an e-business specialist in customer relationship management and service management, employees nearly 100 people at its offices in Lockington and Newport Pagnell. Originally recognised as an Investor in People at its first attempt in 1998, the business recently underwent re-assessment and has now achieved the standard for the second time.

Nottingham Evening Post

19 July 2002